MISSING WOMAN RETURNS HOME

Miss Mamie M. Bayne, Who Disappeared from Sanatorium, Appears at Brother's House.

Missing since Saturday morning from the Washington Sanatorium at Takoma Park, Miss Mamie M. Bayne, twenty-one years old, yesterday afternoon appeared at the home of her brother, Thomas Bayne, 300 Twenty-sixth Street Northwest, and rang the doorbell for admittance.

Miss Bayne, who was sent to the hospital for a nervous trouble, still wore the black skirt and white blouse in which she was attired when she vanished. She had no hat or wrap of any kind.

Relatives have been unable to learn where Miss Bayne has been since her disappearance. Search of the country contiguous to the sanatorium was made Saturday and Sunday by sanatorium attendants, aided by the missing woman's relatives, and the police also searched the city without avail.

Miss Bayne showed no evidence of distress when she returned home and seemed to think that the little trip from the sanatorium, which required three days and two nights, was a matter of little moment. Her clothes were not dusty and her shoes seemed newly polished. Her whereabouts during her absence is a mystery.

When questioned where she had been, Miss Bayne said: "I left the sanatorium to come home and lost my way, that is all." Miss Bayne will not return to the sanatorium, but will remain under the care of a physician at home here.

Flores Barrios, Tirza Sheppard, and Isabella Sparks, who escaped from the House of Mercy, 11th and D streets, and Rosamond Avenue Northwest, shortly after supper Sunday evening, wandered around the city for a few hours and then sought refuge at the home of Miss Bayne's mother, Mrs. J. W. Marshall, 11th and D streets Northwest, where they were found by the police yesterday.

HARBOR POLICE SEARCH RIVER IN VAIN FOR WOMAN'S $25 HEADGEAR

Miss Angela Gordon, who lives at 1107 G Street Northwest, somewhat flustered police of the Harbor precinct Sunday evening when she entered the station and calmly asked the desk sergeant if he would mind having the men drag the Potomac River for her new willow plume hat.

"It just blew overboard, you see," explained Miss Gordon, "and I think you can get it for me if you go out in a boat quick. The hat will look some. Will you, I think?" Miss Gordon valued the headgear at $25. The desk sergeant was perplexed. He was on the point of declining the request (there being no rule in the manual which instructs policemen to search waterways for stray hats) when he saw something that looked like a tear in the fair applicant's eye.

The Harbor police are far too gallant to turn a mute ear to a woman's plea, and so boats were put out with searching crews. Miss Gordon had been standing on the hurricane deck of the excursion steamer Maclester as the boat was docking when a breeze swept the hat away. Falling to the water, the hat was caught in the swirl caused by the steamer's eddies and was never seen again. Although the police were out in boats by daylight yesterday morning, the hat was not found.

MOTOR-BUS LINE POPULAR

Crowds Enjoy Trips Through Rock Creek Park.

The popularity of the new motor-bus line through Rock Creek Park was attested by the enthusiastic comments of those who took this delightful ride on Sunday and Monday. Crowds waited at the starting point, Doherty's Pharmacy, Eighteenth Street and Columbia Road, while the bus was filled to comfortable seating capacity every trip from early morning until late at night.

Picnic parties are being formed to take the bus at 8 in the morning, spending the day at one of the many picturesque spots along the edge of Rock Creek, deep in the wilds where nature in her unspoiled beauty provides delightful pleasure for city-borne folks. Lunch and tea may be taken and the return made in the twilight.

The managers of the line announce that shortly the finest motor passenger buses that are possible to secure will be placed in commission. The bodies being built by the White Company, of Cleveland, and will be of heavy channel steel, low bump, and provided with powerful silent motors. Motor cushion tires will be used on account of their great resiliency.

Work Car in Accident.

Pittsfield, Mass., May 20.—An extra work car for the General Electric Works employees, split a switch at the corner of Seymour and Waconah Streets today and side-swung pole, partially demolishing the car, and severely injuring six passengers and slightly injuring twenty-two others.

Swinging between instead over trucks, a new car for underground railroads requires but seven feet six inches of clearance above the tops of the rails.

Save from Death by Gas.

Russell Howard, nineteen years old, employed by the Georgetown Gaslight Company, narrowly escaped death yesterday morning when he was overcome by gas while connecting a main at Twenty-sixth Street and East Place Northwest. His speedy removal to Georgetown Hospital and prompt action by doctors effected his recovery.

WAS MADE MARTYR INSTEAD OF HERO

Prof. Lavansia Claims of Treatment He Received During Long Fast.

Roanoke, May 20.—After being sensationally starved for thirty-four days in the Carnegie Nutrition Laboratory, Roanoke, Prof. Agostino Lavansia left there today and appealed to a Boston newspaper for help.

Terribly emaciated, Prof. Lavansia told of the treatment by the laboratory experts while all food was withheld from him.

"I came to this country thinking I would become a hero of science. Instead they made a martyr of me. I have passed two days of terror and horror in a public hospital when they 'promised' that I would be cared for in a home for wealthy convalescents. For two days and nights, when so weak I could not raise my head, I have been subjected to the torture of listening to the groans of the sick. I refused to take a bath.

"I have sacrificed almost my life, my wife, and my daughters all for this experiment. I have been ill treated. They have opened my mail. They have refused to allow me to break the fast as I saw fit. It is a wonder that I am alive."

Herald Tourist Weds Young British Officer

Miss Helen Mosher, of This City, on Trip Around World, Becomes Bride of B. C. Balthazar, Attache of British Colonial Office, in Rangoon.

A romantic touch has been lent to The Washington Herald's around-the-world trip aboard the steamship Cleveland by the unexpected marriage in Rangoon, Burma, India, of Miss Helen Mosher, one of the local tourists, to B. C. Balthazar, a young and wealthy attache of the British Colonial Office, whom she met while visiting the Indian city.

Engraved announcements of the romantic marriage were received yesterday by the bride's parents. Although the parents received a cablegram directly following the marriage, which occurred on April 26, news of the event was kept secret until the arrival yesterday of the engraved announcements.

While seeing the sights of Rangoon, Miss Mosher met the young Englishman, who so soon was to become her husband. It was a case of love at first sight, and before the Cleveland steamed away for the next point of interest in the Old World, the pretty tourist and the polished attache were betrothed.

The good ship went to Calcutta. Miss Mosher suddenly notified those in the party with her of the engagement, and made known her intention of returning to Rangoon for the nuptials. So she bade farewell to her companions and started for the Indian city, where her love awaited her.

The wedding ceremony was performed at 4:30 o'clock on the afternoon of April 26, in St. John's Roman Catholic Church, Cantonments, Rangoon. Following the marriage, the couple went to 5 Tank Road, where they will reside. Mr. Balthazar is a graduate of Oxford, England, and an attache of the British Colonial Office.

Upon the same day as the marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Mosher, the parents of the bride, received a brief cablegram, announcing the event. The message read:

"Married to-day to Mr. Balthazar, attache of the British Colonial Office at Rangoon. Will write."

Yesterday the formal announcements were received, together with details of the marriage. Mr. Mosher, the father, is the chief of a division in the Patent Office. Mrs. Mary L. Mosher, the mother, conducts a millinery establishment at 317 Seventeenth Street Northwest.

A postal card was received recently by The Washington Herald from Mr. May, one of the local tourists, stating that Miss Mosher had left the Cleveland at Calcutta for the purpose of returning to Rangoon to marry the Englishman, whom she had met there, but the information was held up until it could be verified by the parents.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., May 20-4 p. m.

Fair and moderately warm weather will probably continue in the South during the next two or three days, but over the North and West the prevailing low pressure will bring the unsettled weather, and showers may be expected quite generally.

Temperatures expected will be broader over the North and West, but use of great caution, except where affected by thunderstorms.

The winds along the New England coast will be moderate east and southeast; on the Middle Atlantic coast moderate and southerly; on the South Atlantic coast moderate east and southeast.
